

Church House, Alcester

The surviving timber frames of a mediæval dwelling

The centre post of the full frame behind the hall has been dated to 1451

Viewed from the rear - NE side

Viewed from the SW side

The full frame is thought to be the back frame of a 15th century house where the hall now stands. The next frame to it is thought to be the front external frame of a second 'utility' house of similar age built behind.

A video animation that rotates this 3D drawing may be seen on Church House website under alcesterminster.org.uk

© Richard Osborne, Alcester 2013